II. UNDERGRADUATES

Undergraduate Enrollments 2017-2018

Gender and Sexuality Studies Core Courses 140
Cross-listed Courses 425

Certificate Students

The certificate in Gender and Sexuality Studies represents an area of concentration that supplements the undergraduate departmental major.

- Students interested in pursuing the certificate generally apply to the program in their sophomore year after completing the introductory course, GSS201, which provides a background and foundation for advanced study and introduces them to the rich variety of feminist and LGBTQ scholarship being conducted today. Interested students need not wait until completing GSS201 to apply to the certificate program, and may take this course at any time during their studies.

- Students are encouraged to take at least one course from at least three of the following thematic clusters. At least one of the courses may not be used to satisfy the requirements for the student’s concentration:
  - Transnational/Global Perspectives
  - Gender, Race, and Ethnicity
  - Bodies, Sexualities
  - Culture and Representation
  - Politics and Social Change
  - Historical Perspectives
• Students must take one additional 300- or 400-level GSS course.
• A total of five courses are required for the certificate.
• Certificate students’ independent work must incorporate issues related to Gender and Sexuality Studies. Students can fulfill this requirement in several ways. For those concentrating in humanities or social science disciplines, the senior thesis and at least one junior paper must incorporate issues related to GSS. For students concentrating in disciplines in which it is difficult to incorporate GSS-related questions into junior papers and theses (including fields such as science or engineering), students can fulfill this requirement by submitting two revised GSS-related course papers for review by the Director.

Courses offered by the Program are open to all Princeton students.

The Suzanne M. Huffman ’90 Memorial Senior Thesis Prize

We are grateful to the family and friends of Suzanne M. Huffman ’90 for endowing this prize. Suzanne was a Women’s Studies certificate student who completed her senior thesis while undergoing chemotherapy. Her feminist commitments were central to her life and remained so until her untimely death in the fall of 1991. To capture something of her spirit, the prize citation reads: “This prize is intended to honor a student whose scholarship shows a deep commitment to the dilemmas raised by feminism and an extraordinary empathy for the problems and struggles of women.” The Huffman Prize is a University-endowed prize included in the Commencement program.

Thesis Prize Recipients:

First Place:
Liam D. Fitzgerald, Department of Sociology: “Queer Ingress: Constructing LGBTQI and HIV Asylum Claims in the United States Immigration System.” This well-researched, well written thesis provides a thoughtful sociological perspective on the intersection of two hot-button issues in contemporary American society: immigration and gay rights.

Second Place:
Jessica Quinter, Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs: “Mature Enough to Have a Baby, But Not an Abortion: The Rhetorical Production of Stigma in Alabama Judicial Bypass Opinions.” This thesis makes a novel and compelling contribution to our understanding of the complex legal and moral landscape around abortion in the contemporary United States—in particular how cultural beliefs and gender norms shape one aspect of abortion decision-making.

Third place:
Miles D. Carey, Department of English: “trash mermaids a queer/ecological riff on a familiar tale.” Mile’s thesis play ties together his studies of English, Gender and Sexuality Studies, Environmental Studies, and Theatre to bring to the light the issues facing both the LGBTQ+ community and the Earth in contemporary society – specifically identity, community, desire, and climate change.
III. CURRICULUM: PROGRAM AND CROSS-LISTED COURSES

Gender and Sexuality Studies Courses

FALL 2017

• GSS 203 / ANT 243: Introduction to Global LGBTQ Studies
  (16 students enrolled)  Prof. Justin Perez
  This course provides an interdisciplinary and transnational introduction to the study of LGBTQ lives. We address the historical emergence of LGBTQ identities and survey how these identities are experienced among different communities around the world. Through global case studies, we examine key concepts and debates in the field, including intersectionality, human rights, homonationalism, normativity, and medicalization. We analyze how LGBTQ works as a meaningful social, political, and historical category and the ways class, race, gender, and nationality intersect with and disrupt it.

• GSS 324 / AMS 324: Science After Feminism
  (13 students enrolled)  Prof. Catherine Clune-Taylor
  Science is commonly held to be the objective, empirical pursuit of natural facts about the world. In this course, we will consider an array of theoretical, methodological, and substantive challenges that feminism has posed for this account of science, and for the practice of scientific knowledge production. In the course of this survey, we shall engage a number of key questions such as: is science gendered, racialized, ableist or classist? Does the presence or absence of women (and another marginalized individuals) lead to the production of different kinds of scientific knowledge?

• GSS 337 / MTD 302 / THR 347 / AMS 336: Gender Crossing in American Musical Theater
  (22 students enrolled)  Prof. Brian Herrera
  This course offers an intensive survey of gender crossings on the American musical theater stage. The course’s study of American musicals (in terms of form, content and context) will be anchored in a historical exploration of world theatrical traditions of cross-gender performance. The course will examine multiple modes of cross-gender performance, while also considering musicals that stage gender role reversals and those that open questions of gender expression and identity.

• GSS 345 / AAS 355 / ENG 399 / AMS 373: Pleasure, Power and Profit: Race and Sexualities in a Global Era
  (19 students enrolled)  Prof. Anne McClintock
  Pleasure Power and Profit explores the intimate ways that sexualities and race are entwined in contemporary culture, historically, and in our own lives. Why are questions about sexuality and race some of the most controversial, compelling, yet often taboo issues of our time? Exploring films, popular culture, novels, social media, and theory, we engage themes like: race, gender and empire; fetishism, Barbie, vampires and zombies; sex work and pornography; marriage and monogamy; queer sexualities; and strategies for social empowerment such as: Black Lives Matter, the new campus feminism, and global movements against sexual and gender violence.

- GSS 395: Media Spectacles, Scandalous Citizens and Democratic Possibilities
  (5 students enrolled)

  Our contemporary mediascape is saturated with spectacle and scandal. In this class, we take this observation and examine, not only the logics that undergird these discursive events, but also the intimate connection between media spectacles and scandals and the regulation of non-normative bodies and speech. This class will examine the manner in which non-normative subjects and practices are hyperembodied, surveilled, stigmatized and disciplined through practices that often cast them as outside of a democratic ethos. Spectacles that might be examined include The Women's March, Trigger Warnings, Black Lives Matter, and Travel Bans.

- GSS 400: Contemporary Theories of Gender and Sexuality
  (6 students enrolled)
  Prof. Gayle Salamon

  One is not born, but becomes, woman. So writes Simone de Beauvoir in her landmark work of feminism, The Second Sex. But how do we become women, anyway? In this course we will read The Second Sex in its entirety, exploring Beauvoir's ideas, along with our current ones, about childhood, coming of age, the family, sexuality, relationships, work, the social order, and the philosophical imaginary. We will read Beauvoir alongside the work of her primary interlocutors as well as contemporary theory, memoir, and fiction considering the question of what it means to become a woman—or not—in contemporary culture.

SPRING 2018

- GSS 201: Introduction to Gender and Sexuality Studies
  (25 students enrolled)
  Prof. Gayle Salamon

  What does it mean to be a woman or a man? Or neither? How do gender and sexuality, those seemingly most personal and private of attributes, emerge from networks of power and social relations? This course introduces major concepts in the interdisciplinary field of gender and sexuality studies. We will analyze the ways in which gender, as an object of study and as a lived experience, intersects with class, race, and ability, and will examine the relation between gender, sexuality and power in literary, philosophical, political and medical discourses.

- GSS 299: Foucault, Power, and Knowledge
  (6 students enrolled)
  Prof. Catherine Clune-Taylor

  This seminar is an in-depth exploration of Michel Foucault's work as not only theorist of power, but as theorist of knowledge as well. To this end, we will engage in close readings of selections of Foucault's work from his Archeological and his Genealogical Periods, as well as from his lecture series at the Collège de France. In the course of this survey, we will explore Foucault's account of the historical emergence of biopower as a unique form of power over "life, itself," as well as his critical explorations of the "human sciences," such as human biology, the science of sexuality, and psychiatry, along with other social sciences.

- GSS 319/ AMS 320 / ENG 436: U.S. Women Writers
  (14 students enrolled)  Prof. Alfred Bendixen
  An exploration of the literary works of women writers in the United States with an emphasis on the role gender has played and continues to play in the development of literary movements and genres. Our examination of both canonical and non-canonical writings will focus on the formation of feminist literary conventions in the 19th century and their transformations in the 20th and 21st centuries. Our reading will include romantic tales, ghost stories, realistic stories, novels of immigration, thrillers, works for children, autobiographical mythmaking, poetry, and graphic novels.

- GSS 420 / SOC 420 / GHP 420: Born in the U.S.A.: Culture and Reproduction in Modern America
  (14 students enrolled)  Prof. Elizabeth M. Armstrong
  Reproduction is a basic biological process, as well as a fundamental one for all societies. While the biology of human reproduction is universal across time and place, cultural norms and social institutions powerfully inflect and shape the experience of pregnancy and childbirth in every society. This course investigates the history and sociology of reproduction, focusing on the contemporary United States, but with an eye toward other societies for comparison. How, why, and for whom does birth matter? How do reproductive practices reflect gender, race, and class? The course examines the culture, politics, and economics of reproduction.

IV. DISABILITY STUDIES WORKING GROUP

GSS is the institutional sponsor of the Disability Studies Working Group, which aims to provide an opportunity for graduate students and faculty across the university to engage this generative and growing field of study. The group hosts work-in-progress events, discussions of recent scholarship in the field, and visiting speakers.

Work Accomplished in Fall 2017 and Spring 2018

The Disability Studies Working Group organized events in the fall and in the spring. The talks and discussions were publicized via email, social media, and the Program website. This year’s group was organized by graduate student Andrew Walker-Cornetta (Religion) and Kristen Starkowski (English). The faculty advisor was Professor Wallace Best.

FALL 2017

- Blackness and Disability Roundtable, Speakers: Jane Dunhamn, National Black Disability Coalition; Leroy F. Moore Jr., Krip-Hop Nation; Timothy Lyle, Iona College; Therí A. Pickens, Bates College; Sami Schalk, University Wisconsin-Madison; Dennis Tyler, Fordham University. 101 McCormick Hall
- Participated in GSS Reading Group event focusing on Jasbir Paur’s The Right to Maim.

SPRING 2018

- A conversation with Talila A. Lewis, activist, organizer, and educator, about anti-violence and decarceration and the juxtaposition between race, class, disability, and structural inequity.
V. GRADUATE STUDENT WORKING GROUP

The GSS Graduate Student Working Group hosts a series of discussions and presentations by graduate students on topics related to the study of gender and sexuality and is open to all students, faculty, and staff. It serves as one of the main links between the Program in Gender and Sexuality Studies and graduate students from across the university. The meetings provide a forum for new scholars from a wide range of backgrounds to discuss gender- and sexuality-related research. This year, the reading group surveyed a broad range of writing in the field, and considered professional development issues for graduate students across disciplines who plan to make careers and teach with gender and sexuality studies as a sub-field.

Work Accomplished in Fall 2017 and Spring 2018

The GSS Graduate Student Working Group met in the fall and in the spring, in 113 Dickinson Hall. The talks were publicized via email, social media, and the Program website. This year’s reading group was organized by graduate students RL Goldberg (English) and Tara Suri (History).

Schedule of Presentations

FALL 2017

• Collaboration with Classics in Queer Time Workshop, which included speakers Shane Butleron on “The Youth of Antiquity” (Johns Hopkins University), Ella Haselswerdt (Princeton University), Ryan Warwick (Johns Hopkins University), Hannah Silverblank (Haverford College), Orlando Reade (Princeton University), and others. 161 East Pyne

SPRING 2018

• Hosted conversations several times over the course of the academic year to discuss texts that the group had read individually, regarding the pressing issues of today, as well as the timeless matters of our society.
VI. EVENTS

GSS WORK-IN-PROGRESS SERIES

For the second time, GSS sponsored a year-long series of work-in-progress talks. We invited Princeton faculty members and postdoctoral fellows as well as scholars from other institutions to present their work. We were gratified by the strong interest in the series, and by the lively interdisciplinary conversations that the talk sparked.

VII. ART EXHIBITIONS

Overseen by Princeton-based artist and curator Dana Lichtstrahl, the exhibition space in our program suite is for artists of Princeton University and the surrounding township, county, and state. Each exhibition includes an artist statement. Exhibitions bring a diverse group of artists and interested visitors into our Program offices and provoke lively discussion among those who visit on a regular basis.

- Julie Jones, oil and watercolor on paper.
- Group Exhibit: Ryan Lilienthal, oil painting; Leslie Bertsch-Neumeyer, pastels and acrylics on wood paper or board; Katie Truk, pantyhose; Léni Paquet-Morante, oil on canvas; Julie Jones, oil on canvas.
- Carole Jury, oil on canvas.
- Maxine Shore, oil on canvas.
- Ewa Budka, paint on cardboard.

VIII. BOOK CLUB DISCUSSIONS

The book club meets approximately once a month, usually from 12:00-1:00, over lunch. The author of the book sometimes attends the discussion with club members. Approximately 100 people belong to the club, most of whom are Princeton University staff. Anyone in the university community is welcomed to be a member and to attend discussions.

2017-18 titles included:

- Anything Is Possible, by Elizabeth Strout
- “Keep the Damned Women Out: The Struggle for Coeducation.” The author, Nancy Weiss Malkiel, joined us for the discussion.
- Negroland, by Margo Jefferson

- Another Brooklyn, by Jacqueline Woodson
- Men Explain Things to Me, by Rebecca Solnit
• Once We Were Sisters: A Memoir. The author, Sheila Kohler, joined us for the discussion.
• Far From the Tree: Parents, Children and the Search for Identity, by Andrew Solomon

IX: COLLABORATIONS

Last year, GSS began a collaboration with scholars in gender and sexuality studies at Humboldt Universität in Berlin, funded by a grant from the Humboldt-Princeton Strategic Partnership. As part of that collaboration in October 2017, seven faculty from Humboldt Universität in Berlin traveled to Princeton University to participate in a conference with the GSS faculty and postdocs (see Appendix I).
